On 5 July, the Chungshan Military Control Commission received confidential instructions from YEH Chien-ying, which were as follows:

- On the instructions of the Financial and Economic Committee, old JMP notes, those with "Republic of China" printed on them, could be kept in circulation until the end of August, 1951.<sup>1</sup> Old notes must be exchanged for the new ones by the end of the year. The specially appointed local People's Bank would attend to this matter. Under special conditions, the time limit might be extended further.
- The local People's Government's seal must be affixed to all outgoing documents.
- No Communist may carry arms unless he is the head of a government department or on protection duty.

[REDACTED] 16 July was the original time limit for exchanging notes.
